

5-Step Framework to Build a Billion-Dollar Company

Think through these before chasing any idea

Vaibhav Sisinty x Raj Shamani Podcast

1

Validate Demand — Don't Invent, Discover

Before building anything, confirm people are already looking for what you want to make. The fastest businesses aren't creating new habits — they're riding existing ones. Your job at this stage is to prove demand exists before writing a single line of code or spending a rupee on product.

HOW TO MEASURE DEMAND

Search volume

Google Trends + Semrush

Keyword intent

Ahrefs — buyer vs info

Reddit / Quora

Complaints = demand

Amazon reviews

Gaps = opportunity

App Store ranks

Category leader traction

Waitlist / pre-order

Real willingness to pay

If a large number of people are searching for it, complaining about it, or already paying for it — that's your green light. If you have to explain the problem to everyone, you're too early.

2

Digital User Acquisition — AI Only Accelerates Internet Businesses

The single biggest unlock of the AI era is automating customer acquisition. AI tools — ad targeting, SEO automation, email flows, chatbots, content generation — only work on products that live on the internet. If the customer discovers, buys, and uses your product digitally, you can scale acquisition with AI.

WORKS FOR ALL THESE BUSINESS TYPES

SaaS / software

D2C e-commerce

Digital education

Subscription boxes

DTC coffee / food brands

It doesn't have to be a pure software product. A D2C brand, a coffee company, a supplement — all fine. But the customer must find you, pay you, and reorder from you online.

3

Low-Touch Pricing — Under Rs.3,000 or Rs.999/Month Subscription

Pricing is the most underrated lever. The higher the price, the more the customer needs to think, compare, sleep on it, get approval. Every rupee above your sweet spot is friction that kills conversion. In India, the magic zone is under Rs.3,000 for one-time purchases — or even smarter: a monthly subscription under Rs.1,000.

WHY THE SUBSCRIPTION MODEL WINS

One-time effort

Build once, earn monthly

Predictable MRR

Compound over time

Lower decision cost

Rs.999 vs Rs.12,000 upfront

Compounding users

Churn < new subs = growth

THE INDIAN SWEET SPOT

Rs.999/month subscription

Rs.1,999 one-time

Rs.2,999 premium

Free trial -> paid

The subscription economy is opening up in India. People are comfortable paying monthly for Netflix, Spotify, gym apps. Put in one-time effort and collect money automatically every month.

4

Realistic & Unlimited Income Potential

The Ceiling Must Be Sky-High

A great opportunity must pass two tests simultaneously: realistic enough that a normal person can start earning within months, and the upside ceiling must be effectively unlimited — top players earning crores, not just lakhs. If income plateaus at Rs.5 lakh/month, you're building a job, not a business.

STRESS-TEST YOUR INCOME CEILING

Year 1 realistic

Can a beginner earn Rs.1L/mo?

Year 3 ceiling

Can top player earn Rs.1Cr/mo?

Is it scalable?

More users = more revenue

Leverage exists?

Code / content / capital

THE TWO FAILURE MODES TO AVOID

Too hard to start — no early wins

Ceiling too low — trapped as freelancer

Realistic money is the entry ticket that keeps you motivated. Unlimited money is the vision that keeps you from quitting. You need both — not one or the other.

5

Your Unfair Advantage — The Thing Only You Can Bring

If steps 1–4 check out, anyone with a laptop could theoretically build what you're describing. Step 5 is what makes it yours — the personal edge that lets you move faster, build trust faster, or go deeper than anyone else. Without this, you're just another person executing a good idea.

TYPES OF UNFAIR ADVANTAGE

Distribution

You have the audience already

Domain expertise

10 years in the problem space

Insider access

You know the suppliers

Community trust

People already follow you

Proprietary data

Competitors can't replicate it

Founder story

You lived the problem yourself

Ask yourself: why would a customer choose me over the 10 others building the same thing? If you can't answer that in one sentence, find a market where your existing advantages matter most.

Quick Checklist — all 5 must pass before you build

- Demand is proven externally — people are already searching or paying
- Users are acquired digitally — the entire journey happens online
- Pricing is under Rs.3,000 or structured as a monthly subscription
- Income is realistic to start and has an effectively unlimited ceiling
- You have a clear unfair advantage no one else can easily replicate
